

An International Journal for Researchers of Horticultural Science

The Horticulture Journal

<http://hortj.org/>

Call for Papers

Special Issue "Quality improvement of ornamental flowers"

The Horticulture Journal is now calling manuscripts for a new special issue "Quality improvement of ornamental flowers"

Editors: Dr. Kazuo Ichimura (Fukukaen Nursery), Dr. Masayoshi Nakayama (Institute of Vegetable and Floriculture Science, NARO) and Dr. Kunio Yamada (Gifu University).

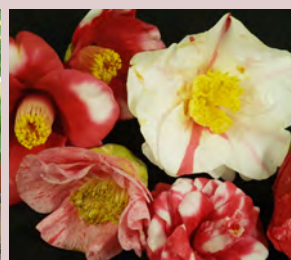

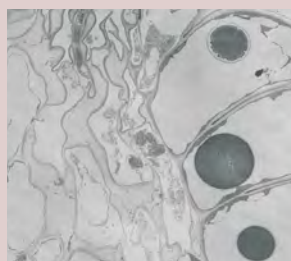

We welcome original research and review manuscripts for this special issue.

This special issue is devoted exclusively to the publication of original papers, review articles and frontiers articles on the quality improvement of ornamental flowers. This includes the areas of technology of cultivation, quality management, postharvest technology of ornamental plants. The following research areas will be considered if they improve the quality of ornamental plants.

- Breeding of ornamental flowers with novel traits
- New production system in protected horticulture
- Postharvest technology for cut flowers
- Storage, transportation system for quality management
- Plant physiology, molecular biology, biotechnology for quality improvement and more

» Authors who are interested in submission, please notify the engagement of their manuscript to this special issue in the cover letter or the comment box in the Editorial Manager submission system.

» Deadline for submission is March 31, 2024. temporarily set to October 31, 2023.
Target date for publication is April 2024.

More information is available

Japanese

English

We look forward to your manuscript!

Contact us : hortj@jshs.jp